ENGLAND AND GERMANY.

MANKIND stands aghast today in the presence of a spectacle that may well be regarded as overwhelming. That which men a few days ago regarded as unthinkable has taken place. England and Germany are at war, and what a leading thinker has termed "The unspeakable crime of the centuries" is about to be committed, with no one apparently willing or able to prevent it.

"Take down your maps of Europe—they must be made over again," was the remark of the representative of England, at the congress of Vienna, when the news reached that body that Napoleon had landed from Elba. The same thing might with equal likelihood of fulfillment be said today; indeed, the geographies of the world may have to be reconstructed before the end arrives of the great era of carnage which now seems to be at hand.

"Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." All Europe seems to have gone blood crazy and to be bent toward the pit of destruction. It forms a spectacle over which the angels might weep. England and Germany, the homes of Christianity, of culture, of advanced thought, refinement, scientific development, the lands of Shakespeare and Milton, of Goethe and Schiller, nations which led in the establishing of the Hague tribunal for the adjudication of international difficulties—those two flying at each other's throats—nations whose three monarchs are cousins, all grandsons of the peace-loving Victoria—it all presents a theme to stagger human comprehension, one upon which the heathens of the earth may dwell in mockery, and Satan himself gloat over in triumph.

That portion of mankind fortunate enough to occupy the position of onlookers in the vast struggle, can only stand still in humble thankfulness that its lot is cast in lands where such strife is unknown, ready to extend the hand of pity and succor wherever possible, but leaving the issue with the Great Ruler of all destinies, who holds men and nations alike in the hollow of his hand.

MAKE-UP OF AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

IN spite of its important position, both geographically and politically, but few people realize exactly what they mean when they speak of Austria-Hungary, according to an authority of the National Geographic society. To many the words Austria and Hungary seem interchangeable terms for the same country. "What, then, is Austria, what is Hungary, and why are they always bracketed together?"

The Austrian empire is a constitutional monarchy, formed by three kingdoms (Bohemia, Galicia and Dalmatia), two archduchies, Upper and Lower Austria, and a collection of duchies, courtships, and margraves of princely rank; all of them united in the person of the Emperor Francis Joseph.

The adjacent and entirely independent kingdom of Hungary, in addition to Hungary proper, includes Croatia, Slavonia and Transylvania, countries formerly independent, but now, through intermarriage, conquest and inheritance, all possessions of the apostolic king of Hungary, who happens by a purely historic chance to be also sovereign of the empire of Austria. The possession of a unifying link in the person of their common ruler has led to the Ausgleich or "Compromise," whereby the two countries, for mutual convenience, have agreed to join forces in maintaining joint diplomatic and naval and military services. Beyond this the two countries are entirely independent, each having its own constitution, legislature and administration.

No country in Europe, except Hungary, contains within its borders so many diverse nations and tongues as the Austrian empire. Each of the three great ethnic stocks of Europe is represented—the Latin, the German and the Slav, with the latter predominating, as to it belong 15,000,000 out of the 26,000,000 inhabiting the empire. The Hungarian, or more properly, the Magyar, is perhaps the keenest patriot in Europe, and he manifests his enthusiasm by seeking to impose his language and customs upon his Slavonic fellow-citizens with a persistence that neither opposition nor passive resistance can diminish.

Perhaps, as General Nelson A. Miles suggests, Europe may be due for a broil of war to hasten the day of a "parliament of reason." It was a wise philosopher who said that the world lives by the vicarious death of the just and innocent.

Zeb Ray, one of the Democratic candidates for inspector of mines, is in Winnemucca trying to convince the voters of his fitness for the office. Zeb is somewhat of a humorist, when it comes to English, he is an idealist.

AMUSEMENTS

BUTLER THEATER

There are but two more numbers left of the Kathlyn series. We are today showing the eleventh number, together with "Tango in Tuckerville," Edison comedy. "Sophie Gets Stung," Essanay comedy. The picture today of Kathlyn is one of the most interesting pictures that we have had for some time. Kathlyn was saved from the burning building by Bruce and the colonel, who were informed of her flight by Umballah's deposed captain of the guards, Umballah, thinking Kathlyn is dead, decides to tell his secret that the king is being kept prisoner in the woods guarded by the wicked followers of Umballah; the Majordomo to whom this information is given is charged with the task of poisoning Ramabai with what is supposed to be crushed pearls, but what is in reality deadly poison. In the banquet that follows Kathlyn by mistake takes the poison goblet to drink out of it when the Majordomo, who reverences her, snatches it from her hand, drains the draught and himself dies. In his dying agony he tells of the king's secret confinement and that Umballah had sent him to poison Ramabai. Tomorrow, "The Barrier of Ignorance," a two-reel Kalem drama.—Adv.
